

December 22, 2009

The Foundation is pleased to announce the following Fulbright awards for Israeli students for academic year 2010/2011:

1. Two- year Doctoral Student Grants:

A limited number of partial grants in all non-clinical fields in the amount of $25,000 will be awarded to selected students who plan to study towards doctoral degrees at accredited institutions in the United States, beginning September, 2010. Deadline for receipt of applications by the Foundation: February 15, 2010.

2. One- year Doctoral Student Grants:

Approximately two grants in all non-clinical fields in the amount of $12,500 will be awarded to students enrolled in a doctoral program in Israel who need to travel to the United States to conduct research for a year and then return to Israel to complete their doctorates, beginning September 2010. Deadline for receipt of applications by the Foundation: February 15, 2010.

3. Fulbright-ISEF Grant for a Doctoral Student

One supplemental grant will be awarded to a graduate student in any non-clinical field planning to study for a Ph.D. in the United States, beginning September, 2010. The grant is intended for a student from an underprivileged economic background, who is involved in community service activities and who has demonstrated leadership capabilities in these activities. Deadline for receipt of applications by the Foundation: February 15, 2010.

Note: Candidates holding dual Israeli-American citizenship are not eligible to apply. Persons seeking permanent residence in the U.S. or holders of green cards should not apply.

We kindly request that you disseminate the information on our awards to interested students within your institution. For full information and application forms on the above opportunities, please visit our website: www.fulbright.org.il

Potential candidates may also call me at the Foundation for further information or e-mail me at JStavsky@fulbright.org.il

Many thanks.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Judy Stavsky".

Judy Stavsky
Deputy Director

